Luckily you can solve them easily. If for a particular TV show the stream is not available then you can raise a request with the developers of the application and they will look into the same and add the stream on a priority basis.However, if the stream is not playing then it means there could be a server problem for that particular stream. We request you to wait for 24 hours before trying again. If the stream still doesn't work then it might be the case that the content is restricted in your region. Hence, you require installing a good VPN Service to view that particular content.Moreover, for Kodi, on FireStick, Roku and any other devices VPN is highly recommended for this application as your ISP may block the application from accessing the internet if your country has laws against such applications which provide free online streaming for the latest content. To resolve buffering issues you can increase the cache size for the application in 'Settings'. However, if the issue still persists check your internet connection. If things seem to be well with the connection then install a VPN and then play that particular stream.
