How to find out the android version. How to know the version of my android. How do i know what version my android is. How to find out what browser version i am using.

Google has officially revealed the new operating system, Android 5.0 Lollipop, that it previewed at Google I/O earlier this year. Until Wednesday, it had been code-named Android "L." Google is calling Lollipop its "largest, most ambitious" Android release yet. The company overhauled its aesthetics with "Material Design," which is a sleek, colorful new interface that is meant to make the user experience seamless across phones, tablets, TVs, and smartwatches. You can see more specific examples of how nice Material Design looks here. Lollipop also lets users make new settings adjustments, like controlling which notifications they'll get at certain times (for example, you can set your phone so that during a fancy dinner you'll see texts only from family). You can also create multiple user accounts (especially valuable for tablets) and a guest user mode, which will allow you to keep parts of your phone private when you're letting someone else use it. Perhaps one of the most exciting features of Lollipop is that there's a new battery-saver feature that will help extend the life of your phone — by up to 90 minutes. Google also just officially unveiled its new smartphone — the Nexus 6 — which will, of course, come running Lollipop. For other Nexus owners, you'll get a Lollipop update in early November. Google also made an emotionally resonant video around the idea of Android being open source: Meet the Dermatologist Who Wants to Save You Money — and Just Hit a $200 Million Milestone for Patients Your Employees Want This Perk, and Giving It to Them Can Improve Your Bottom Line The Hidden Dangers of Not Taking Your Vacation Days This Family-Owned Manhattan Jewelry Shop Struggled to Rebuild After 9/11. Today, 2 Sisters Who Run the 46-Year-Old Business Reveal What It Takes to Persevere. Businesses Need More Women Investors. Here's How That Can Happen. Franchising Isn't for Entrepreneurs. It's for Systempreneurs This Former Disney Exec Shares Her 5 Most Valuable Takeaways on Leadership Following Viral LinkedIn Post You're a busy person. Despite having the capability of installing dozens of apps, you only want to install the best. The problem is you're not sure what the best is. There are too many online articles referencing the same apps. And when you do install some of them, you find yourself cluttering your phone with apps you don't use. The solution? Install only the apps that will help you become more productive? The truth is no app alone will help you become productive. You need to build the right mindset and become laser-focused with your goals. So the real solution is to start by building a productive mindset. In this article, I'll not only look into the Android productivity apps you need, but some extra advice on how to be productive. Here's a list I've compiled of some the best apps to help you become a productivity machine. 1. Five Minute Journal What's a better way to start your mornings or end your nights than scribbling down your thoughts? So stick with the above apps that fuel you with productivity! Bonus Tip: Create Productive Habits to Make These Apps Work for You But besides using the above apps, start creating productive habits that I'm going to reveal to you. 1. Transform Your Mornings to Being Productive Start your mornings with productivity. Here's what I mean, wake up an hour earlier each morning to organize your day before you get distracted. The problem is that if you start your mornings without intention you'll do only what's thrown at you. For example, you'll complete your assigned tasks at work and feel like you've had a productive day. But was it productive? If you aren't getting closer towards your most important goals each day then you didn't do much. That's why morning rituals are the most important part of your day. - Scroll down to continue reading article - - Scroll down to continue reading article - There's a reason why successful people like Tim Ferris, Tony Robbins, and Oprah have morning rituals. Because they work. Morning rituals prime your mind for success by setting clear intentions. Your morning ritual consists of many habits. But, the most important ones are journaling and meditating. Meditating will clear your mind from all mental distractions. And once your mind is clear you can begin setting your daily goals. 2. Increase Your Odds at Succeeding by Setting Goals Setting goals is an art. Set the bar too high and you will never complete anything. But, set the bar low and you'll only complete mediocre tasks. So what's the best way to set goals? Using a journal to write S.M.A.R.T goals you wish to do each day. Research has shown that people who set clear goals are more likely to succeed vs those who don't. So how do you know which goals to set? Start by asking yourself the following questions: Am I happy with my current job? What do I want to learn next? Am I content with my financial situation? Your goal should be meaningful to you. Otherwise, it's less likely that you'll complete it. Once you've settled on a few goals you'd like to do, start breaking them down into smaller chunks. For example, if you plan to lose some weight and want to lose 10lbs in 3 months, set a goal to lose 3lbs each month. At the end of the day write down your progress in your journal, and repeat this process daily. 3. Beat Down Your Daily Distractions You already know that waking up earlier helps you avoid completing unimportant tasks. But this isn't enough. You need to cut most of your distractions. What are they? It depends. Somedays it can be your coworkers and others it can be your favorite TV show. The first step is to become aware of what distracts you the most. But most people's distraction is in their pocket. Your smartphone is a great tool to stay productive but more often than not it's used for the wrong reasons. A recent study revealed that smartphone addiction leads to feeling more anxious and productivity loss. So how can you cut distractions from your smartphone? First, acknowledge that your smartphone it's diminishing your productivity. If you're constantly checking your smartphone throughout the day then that's a problem. It may not seem like much, but 5 to 10 minutes of free time can equate to 1+ hours each day. Then work your way towards eliminating other distractions. Don't overthink this. Any task that prevents you from giving your full attention to an important task is a distraction. Try these tips: Go on airplane mode when working on important tasks Reconfigure your phone's notifications so not every single app's notifications pop up to you Uninstall apps you haven't used in the last 30 days Use apps that encourage productivity Most importantly, be patient with yourself. You will fumble the first few weeks. Why? Because you're eliminating habits you'd built over the years. Becoming Productive Imagine completing your most important tasks each day and feeling in control. The best part is that your smartphone apps only contribute a small part of your success. You've eliminated bad habits and adopted a more productive lifestyle. Amazing, right? You now have a list of some of the best apps out there to help you become productive. But don't rely solely on these apps. Instead, practice on setting your intentions each morning. Set goals and plan for your future.
