Introduction

Homosexuality is a recent issue in our society. This paper will analyze few different topics which come up with the theme of homosexuality. First of all, it will analyze the military approach to the LGB (lesbian, gay, bisexual) community in various countries around the world. Furthermore, it will explore the topic of Don't Ask Don't Tell policy (DADT) enforced in the 90s in USA.

First of all, I would like to explain why did I chose the case of military „gayban“ in the United States of America. It is said that USA is the most democratic country in the world. And yet, there is a possibility of existence of such a ridiculous policy in a country, which is supposed to have protection of human rights on top of its list. Another reason is, that this policy is not compatible with the laws of the US. In spite of that, it existed for almost 20 years.

Moreover, this paper will show the reasons why was it possible, it will argument for and against the policy, name countries with gay bans and which countries provide a military gay-friendly enviroment. Lastly, it will analyze the situation of my home country, Slovakia, in terms of military and society's approach to homosexuals.

Military approach to homosexuals around the world

We do not live in a democratic world yet. Homosexuality is not a widely accepted term. In many countries around the world there are still high restrictions against homosexual behaviour. In five countries (Mauritania, Iran, Sudan, Yemen and Saudi Arabia) it is punishable by death. In many others, it is criminalized and forbidden by law too. Those who violate the law might even spend their life-time in prison (Fisher, 2013). Naturally, this reflects on the military approach to homosexuals of each count...
