Technology has been an integral part of society for years. People use all sorts of technology (computers, smartphones, iPod's, etc.) for tasks of daily living. Beyond everyday tasks, such as technology, improves academic success is what the next work will be discussed. "There is a pressure on schools to adapt to the new technology, the same impulse drives that teacher, like anyone else, to use computers in their everyday lives" (Culling, F, Cedric, H, Nusrat, 2009, p.18). Having knowledge in technology helps professionally. This knowledge coupled with a good education provides a new range of opportunities. The state used exams to measure the academic achievement of schools and also evaluate them. "And while standardized test scores continue to be the measurement du jour, the use of technology is having an equally positive impact in helping students gain necessary 21st century skills that serve to advance learning engagement, and prepare students for life and work" (ISTE, 2008, p.7). It is important to note that an integral part of student achievement are the teachers and the curriculum offered by the institution. Teacher with knowledge of technology combine with a good curriculum give the students the tools they need to succeed. "Many teachers use technology not because helps them achieve a new goal, but because it allows them to achieve their current goals more effectively than do their traditional methods” (Ertmer, P. A, 2005, p....show more content...) “When implemented appropriately, the integration of technology into instruction has a strong, positive impact on student achievement” (ISTE, 2008, p. 5). Many of the tests performed in different schools in the United States have shown that technology attached to education helps students improve academically. The technology can be used in many ways, for example to give online classes, presentations, and more. Computers are one of the most used technology tools in schools today. “Skill of the computers include: communicate, collaborate, analyze, create, innovate and solve problems” (ISTE, 2008, p. 9). With computers comes the internet. “One of the biggest concerns about computers and their use is student do not give the proper use at home” (Culling, F, Cedric, H, Nusrat, 2009,
