“There are over 20,000 children from foreign countries adopted by American families every year, and hundreds, if not thousands, of dedicated professionals who devote their lives to bringing these families together” (Spivack). Every child deserves a loving, caring and dedicated family that is going to take good care of them. There are so many children out there that do not receive families that are willing to take good care of their children and have to live a horrible life of poverty, no education, and no health care. International adoption should be supported because those children will be able to receive a better education, they will be able to get away from a life of poverty, and they can receive adequate health care.

Background

Did you know that ninety percent of internationally adopted children are under the age of five? Only eleven percent are over the age of five when they are adopted. Out of the children adopted most of them are girls. The girl to boy ratio is 64% to 36%. The reason more girls are adopted than boys is because most of the children that are adopted, are from China, and China gives their girls up and puts them in orphanages, over putting boys in orphanages (Donaldson).

United States citizens adopt from over 106 different countries, but there are only five main countries that United States citizens choose to adopt from. In 1990, the four top countries leading in international adoptions were South Korea, Columbia, Peru, and Philippines. Now the top five leading countries are, China, Russia, South Korea, Guatemala, and Ukraine (Donaldson).

International adoption can be pretty expensive. To adopt a child from China it can cost around $15,000 and to adopt from Guatemala it can cost around $20,000. People ...
