Culture in Egypt is rich and deep. Having one of the oldest cultures dating back to before the pharaohs; Egypt's culture is well developed and distinctive. With a religious cultured background, Egypt is developing rapidly into a restructured culture, combining old with new. An overview shows a complex structured culture built on many influences.

Humanity builds around culture and is a complex system that is difficult to define due to many factors. Webster dictionary defines culture as "the integrated pattern of human knowledge, belief, and behavior that depends upon the capacity for learning and transmitting knowledge to succeeding generations" (Web). A great many things can define a culture. Five of the major characteristics that classify culture is social, ideational, adaptive, cumulative, and gratifies human needs. Defining each attribute is simple. Through dealings in a group, a society develops a social network that contributes to the overall culture. The use of ideas and symbols that developed over time through experiences and environmental influences defines ideational. All cultures develop with time based on any external and internal influences including environment, sciences, and social influences. This development is a cultural adaptation. Ensuring that food, shelter, clothing, love, religion, and protection are taken care of defines gratifying the human needs of the culture. Relating to the human needs, Egyptian culture is a mixture of old and new
