Alkaline is an artist with great influence among young people in the kingdom of Dancehall. He is known for his elusive character and the aggressive style of hip-hop influenced in his music that artistically captures the core of the past genre while embodying the diversity of Modern Dancehall. Bartley was born at Victoria Jubilee Hospital in Kingston. He attended Ardenne High School and studied Media and Communications at the University of West India. [3] During his period in high school he began to have the determination of music. [2] With the support of his close friends, he visited the local recording studios after school whenever he had the chance. Career Bartley began recording at the age of 16, using the stage name Alkaline. It became popular in Jamaica in 2013 with a series of singles such as "123", "High Suh", "Bruk Out", "Things Mi Love" and "Live Life". His live shows were sometimes controversial, in February 2016 an object was thrown at him with a bottle while on stage in St. Lucia, responding by throwing the bottle at the culprit. [4] In March 25, 2016, Alkaline's debut album, "New Level Unlocked", was released by DJ Frass Records, at the top of Billboard Reggae Charts in April, which was for eighteen weeks, making it the first deejay dancehall to have a number one album on the charts in five years. "New unlocked level" was selected at number 3 in the number "10 Best Reggae Albums of of He had hit single in Jamaica that year with "Champion Boy", "Block and Elimination", "After all", "12:00 (living)", "Formula" and "City". [6] In November 2016 was presented on a remix of "that love" by Shaggy. [9] In September 2016 was nominated for a Mobo Award for the second time in the best category Reggae Act. [10] His "Champion Boy" was remixed in October 2016 and used in an advertising campaign for the Red Stripes Premier League. [11] With the name of the Vendetta crew he uses to classify his fans, he announced the launch of a clothing line with clothes to be considered DETTA Gear. [12] Back in 2014 Alkaline was considered one of the young hot acts in Dancehall space, not only for its extreme talent, but its enormous controversial significance. From that moment on the 2016 alkaline was very far from Jamaica concentrating on his profession and staying away from negativity. In the time there were critics who claim that he has changed in Jamaica, since he has not performed for a long time in his country of origin. [13] After his tour of the album, March 2017 arrived and alkaline decided to prove that the wrong critic by creating his own show called "New Rules Festival" which he brought to his country of origin and quickly began to be one of the most expected performances of the year with the artist Like Mavado, Shaggy, y-Octane, Tarrus Riley, Jahmiel and many others in the National Park of Jamaica Stadium. [14] With one of the biggest crowds on a Jamaican stage show, [15] many participants of the show would have gone out to say "new rules" is one of the greatest dancehalls shows ever and will definitely go down in history. In the months following that year in July alkaline attended the biggest annual stage show of the Reggae Sunfest in which he has not performed since 2014 making a huge return as one of the leading artists as presented by the legendary Dean Fraser. [16] Early December 2019 single "With the thing" was described in the video game Grand Theft Auto V with the soundtrack "iFruit Radio". [17] In February 12, 2021, Alkaline announced his second studio album "Top Prize". [18] The album was released on May 14, 2021. [19] After the first week "Top Prize" launched on the Billboard Reggae Albums Chart[20] and also No. 19 on the board Heat Seekers Albums Chart for salt. [21][22] Controversies Corneal Tattoo Alkaline in a portrait 2014 When Alkaline first appeared on the Jamaican scene Dancehall in 2013, he became famous for his distinctive appearance, with pale skin and blonde dreadlocks but the most controversial was his alleged tattooed eyes, who pushed others to follow the dress. He caused quite a stir when he said he had a Corneal tattoo in his eyes. [24] Praised as an advertising find by the Jamaican public, Alkaline received a lot of backing for the controversial move but also got a heavy music. An ongoing theme in much of his breakout music was the year "2016", which generated many intrigues as he never explicitly declared the meaning or meaning of the year. He would have kept up this charade for about three years, until he finally revealed that "tattoos" were nothing more than a ruse. [26] As the Jamaican public inaugurated the year of 2016. Soon he revealed that the meaning of 2016 consisted in the fact that until that year he was dedicated to making his music speak for himself, and did not require any more publicity stunts for any form of media coverage. This pushed the release of his debut album, New Level Unlocked. [6] Since then he has stopped wearing black contact lenses that would cover the cornea, and has il suo posto nella scena del dancehall giamaicano.
