Thomas Barwick / Getty Images Learning boating skills online may seem like a contradiction, but many course providers now offer the chance to do just that. Most states require anyone with a powerboat or personal watercraft to complete an approved boater safety course. With a few clicks, you can enroll, pay, study, and take your exam from the comfort of home. Other online boater safety certifications are designed for specific types of water-based fun, from offshore sailing to canoeing on your local river. Here are our top choices for the best online boater safety courses. Why We Chose It: America's Boating Course stood out for us as the best overall choice because of its comprehensive nature and downloadable, full-color course manual. What We Like Approved by NASBLA and the United States Coast Guard Access to comprehensive downloadable manual Assistance from United States Power Squadrons members What We Don't Like Not as interactive as some online courses Only compatible with Internet Explorer More expensive in some states than others Approved by the National Association of State Boating Law Administrators (NASBLA) and the U.S. Coast Guard, America's Boating Course is one of the most in-depth online options out there. It is designed for users of all types of watercraft and will teach you the skills you need to keep safe on the water. Additionally, successful completion of the course's final exam makes you eligible for your state boating card (in states that allow online certification). Once you enroll, you will be given access to a downloadable manual by the United States Power Squadrons, a nonprofit dedicated to maritime safety. Content covered includes local laws and regulations, navigation rules, water sports safety, and boat maintenance. Use the review questions after each section to help you retain the information. After completing the final exam, all course materials will remain available including a series of useful printable forms (e.g. checklists and accident reports). The course costs $34.95 in most states. Why We Chose It: We chose Boat Ed as our runner-up because of its well-designed and intuitive website and the multimedia nature of its online course. What We Like Course material includes live-action videos Fully mobile-friendly design Can save progress and complete course at your own pace What We Don't Like Cost differs from state to state Some states require further steps before certification Customer service team is not available 24 hours a day Boat Ed is recognized by the Coast Guard and approved by NASBLA and your local state boating license agency. On the company's homepage, you will be able to select your state and see the course cost and requirements at a single glance. In most states, the course costs $34.95. It is a particularly good choice for visual learners since it includes live-action, high-definition videos that bring potential boating scenarios to life. You'll also have access to a full course manual, which you can read on your smartphone, tablet, laptop, or desktop computer. The course can be completed in just a few hours, but you also have the freedom to save your progress and log in and out whenever you like. You have unlimited attempts at the final exam, and in most states all you need to do upon passing it is print your online course completion certificate. Why We Chose It: We chose BOATERexam.com as the best option for visual learners because of its beautifully illustrated learning materials and exam questions. What We Like Cheaper than the previous entries on this list Over 2 million boaters successfully certified Also available for Canadian boaters What We Don't Like Not available in every state Card takes three to five weeks to arrive Customer service team not always available NASBLA- and Coast Guard-recognized BOATERexam.com offers boater safety courses in 45 states and Canada. Each course is tailored to meet the specific requirements of each state, and every exam is approved by the relevant state agency. You can study on any device, from your smartphone to your desktop computer, using materials that have been designed especially for visual learners. You'll also benefit from videos, animations, and full-color illustrations. Best of all, every question on the final exam is also illustrated to help you get the best possible results. Once you pass the test, you can print a certificate of completion and go boating right away (depending on state laws) while you wait for your official boater education card to arrive in the mail. Live customer support is available every day from 9 a.m. to midnight EST. The course costs $29.95 and exam retakes are always free. Why We Chose It: Ilearnboat is the stand-out choice for those wanting an even more interactive experience, due to its game-style format complete with an avatar and role-playing simulations. What We Like Brand new approach to online learning Can be completed on your smartphone Approved by NASBLA and the Coast Guard What We Don't Like Not yet available in every state Game-style format may not suit every user Must complete course within 90 days of registration Those with a passion for video games will love Ilearnboat's clever new way of getting your boater education certificate. Approved by NASBLA, the Coast Guard, and your state agency, the website offers courses in 15 states as of May 2021—and more are being added all the time. It is especially valuable for interactive learners, giving you the opportunity to build an avatar and tackle challenges based on real-life scenarios. You will need to complete all levels and pass a final exam to receive your temporary boater education certificate. If you choose to do the course in a single sitting, it should take around three hours. However, you have 90 days from the time of registration to complete it if you want to do so at your own pace. The course is accessible on all Apple and Android phones as well as your computer, and costs around $50. Why We Chose It: BoatUS Foundation was the obvious winner for this category since it is the only free online boater safety course sanctioned by the majority of state authorities. What We Like Offered free of charge Can be completed at your own pace Accessible from any device with an internet connection What We Don't Like Not Paddlesports' Safety Course Why We Chose It: We chose Boat Ed's Paddlesports' Safety Course because it is NASBLA-approved and designed in partnership with the American Canoe Association (ACA). What We Like Endorsed by NASBLA and the ACA Can be completed on any device with internet Unlimited exam attempts What We Don't Like Expensive for a course that isn't legally required Not particularly interactive Customer service availability is based on EST Paddlesports' education may not be a legal requirement, but people who plan on exploring their local waterway with a canoe, kayak, or stand-up paddleboard need to be familiar with state laws and regulations and should understand how to stay safe on the water. Boat Ed offers an easy way to achieve this with its paddlesports safety course, developed in conjunction with the American Canoe Association. The course content is accessible from any device and can be completed in a single sitting in just a few hours, or broken up into smaller sessions to suit you. If you close your browser in the middle of the course, it will automatically save your progress. Unlimited exam attempts ensure that you get the result you want, after which you can print your online course completion document and head straight onto the water. There is no minimum age requirement or residential requirement to take this course. The cost is $29.50. If you're looking for a traditional, comprehensive online boater safety course, our top picks are those offered by America's Boating Course and Boat Ed. Visual learners are likely to benefit from BOATERexam's format, which includes fully illustrated exam questions, or the interactive, gamer-style concept of the Ilearnboat course. BoatUS Foundation is the only organization to offer the course for free (although it is not officially recognized in some states) while NauticEd and Boat Ed are our go-to choices for sailing and paddle sports courses, respectively. Residents of most states are legally required to take a boater safety course before operating a powerboat or personal watercraft on public waterways. Doing yours online means being able to study at your own pace and take the exam from the comfort of home. The length of an online boater safety course depends on the course and how you choose to do it. The ones mentioned in this article take a total of between three and 14 hours to complete, which you can do in a single sitting or over the course of several days. Online boater safety courses vary in cost. However, the average cost of getting your state agency and NASBLA-approved boater education card is around $35. It is possible to get it for free through the BoatUS Foundation if you live in a state where this certification is officially recognized. Our favorite course for sailors is NauticEd's Safety at Sea Clinic, which offers a comprehensive, 14-hour overview of all the safety procedures and emergency responses that might be required by a bluewater sailor. Extensive online research revealed that although there are many websites offering online boater safety courses, many (like Safe Boating America) redirect to one of the providers listed in this article. Therefore, we decided to focus on companies that offer courses themselves rather than outsourcing them. We also prioritized those that are approved by NASBLA and recognized by the Coast Guard, and that operate in as many states as possible. We found that some providers, like BoatTests101, appear to offer courses in every state but in reality have yet to launch in most areas. Thanks for letting us know! Continue to 5 of 7 below.
